"A friend of mine who was just at Cornell for Family Weekend, visiting her son, texted me some photographs of chalking she had seen on campus sidewalks. One patch of concrete read "CORNELL PROTECTS RAPISTS." Another read "PROTESTERS SUSPENDED RAPISTS GO FREE." Yet another: "CHALKING BECAUSE PROTESTS ARE BANNED." These messages, presumably written by students, are arguably reductive in their analysis...They are also invaluable as primary documents, blessedly untouched and unmediated by the adults in charge who say they know better, or who might pretend that their authors really meant to say something else instead."—Jessica Winter, New Yorker 10/1/26

2026-10-14 16:23:30 From Anne Marie Brady to Everyone:

This administration's failures to protect Cornell students and patients (at Weill Cornell) from sexual violence have not only resulted in far-reaching trauma, they have also damaged the long-term financial stability of our institution, costing not only one billion dollars in legal settlement fees but potential billions of dollars lost in withheld donations. This has a direct impact on our working conditions, including as a significant driver of the "Resilient Cornell" measures we all endured last year.

2 years is too long

2026-10-14 16:25:09 From Susan Pannullo to Everyone:

President Kotlikoff - on the topic of money - in a time of austerity for our institution, can you explain where the $1 billion dollars paid as a part of Cornell University's settlement with the US Department of Justice a few weeks ago and the additional $30 million dollars to be used to support the mandated creation of a "center" for patient safety and empowerment came from?

2026-10-14 16:27:03 From Lexi Scanlon (she/they) to Everyone:

2026-10-14 16:30:42 From Rehana Huq to Everyone:

Not knowing .. another systemic failure .. collective leadership failure .. not President Kotlikoff’s failure alone

2026-10-14 16:31:18 From Rebecca Schneider to Everyone:

Pres. Kotlikoff, when Jane Doe reopened the case 3 weeks ago, there was an extended multi-day delay before Cornell administration responded. Students consistently reported that they were overwhelmed by outside communication and social media while there was an “echo chamber” at Cornell. This allowed news media to take over the messaging, and has caused irreparable damage to our reputation internationally. Why wait? where was our public relations right when this happened.

2026-10-14 17:27:11 From Alex Nading to Everyone:
Chris, people can vote on whether or not they have confidence in the administration. The standard is clear; the question is clear. Students and alumni don't need more informatoin or clarification; they lack confidence; many of us do, too. And I think this meeting has made clear that many of our colleagues are doing hard work on these issues. Listen to what your colleagues have said today. Leadership is not just about putting us to work when we are needed to address a crisis, but about enabling us to do what we were actually hired to do. (Hint: answering questions about why students don't feel safe is not what we were hired to do)
