Yes, I'm in favor, but the resolution should have given a bigger "shout out" to the administration for their leadership throughout the pandemic, to the point of making some unpopular decisions that ran counter to popular opinion in some cases-- notably, the first in-person re-opening of the campus.

With a hearty round of applause

I agree with the sentiments wholeheartedly.

I see no reason to praise people for doing their jobs, but I have no objection if others want to do so.

Much thanks for these efforts.

I myself would have favored a second sense of the Senate motion, focused purely on the leadership team assembled by Mike and Martha and led by them. We all pulled our weight in terms of getting Cornell through this very tough period, but what the Cornell leadership group did was far beyond what a person like I did, and it should be acknowledged. But the resolution is valuable and a good step, in any case!

Really? We're voting on saying 'thanks'?
